1. There are approximately 1,500 men engaged in the construction of a road leading to the military airdrome at Zingst (P-48). The road is made of gravel and cement. Hangars are also being erected for coastal defence sea planes. There are a few soldiers (about 200) under a second lieutenant. German technicians are conducting the work on the airdrome which is guarded by soldiers against the entry of unauthorized persons. The workers, young and unmarried, are kept in labor camps.
